Hey governor,

The next time you're talking w pip, ask her why she's looking forward to growing up or becoming a woman. I'm going to plug her answer into some short opening remarks for you for the women's history luncheon. I'm sure whatever her answer is will get the crowd laughing. Fyi, you're opening remarks are optional. I just want to make sure you have 'em if you need 'em.

Hope you're having a great weekend!

No prob at all, in the end. We certainly didn't need security, just a parking spot. Gary didn't respond very favorably about advising on the parking- no big deal tho cuz we're here now!

I had assumed that this was taken care of. I should have checked to confirm. Gary asked me for details yesterday and I told him that Sharon was staffing and coordinating and that I didn't think security would be necessary at the event (since they have their own) but I wasn't thinking of parking and thought he'd ck w/sharon. I apologize for any inconvenience.

Thanks. It will be an intense, important week. I am home today and then headed to Anchorage tomorrow. Thanks for letting me be part of your team. Kay Cashman, Petroleum News, treated us well about the rumors.

As soon as time allows it would be good to review the town meetings-a real success.

Have a great day! God bless. Tom

As you all know, the Point Thompson remand hearings will start next Monday 3rd and continue through Friday 7th from 8:30 am to 5:00 pm. To help in everyone's thinking: in my opening comments I will be stating that I will be interested in the proposed POD, how it compares to the previously denied POD, what makes this different, what are the protections in this 23rd POD that progress would be made, how can this POD be trusted with 22 previous POD's, that I have not been influenced by the Governor or others, that the decision is solely mine and that I have the full responsibility to make the correct decision on the information provided.

It will be an important week and I will have great support with Nan, Marty, the legal team, and our DOG technical team. Hope this update helps. Tom

SOUTHEAST CONFERENCE
MID WINTER SUMMIT

March 25 - 27, 2008

Look to the Future with Southeast Alaska's Collective Investment and new ideas.

View Our Draft Agenda Tuesday 25th and Wednesday 26th
Southeast Conference recognizes that today's uncertainty in the development of Energy and Transportation infrastructure has the potential to shut the door on some opportunities in Alaska. Projects and infrastructure investments made now will have a profound impact on the future of our region. We need to encourage government and private entities to maximize the dollars available and explore the new areas of technology out there.

Our members will meet with key legislators and members of the administration. Tuesday and Wednesday we will discuss the current issues and ask tough questions of ourselves and our state government leaders. Our draft agenda is attached for your viewing.
